Title IX Basics
How to Avoid Potential Risks
Information Is Power

It can help you appropriately recognize and respond to potential problems
Title IX

• Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 is the principal law that prohibits sex discrimination in education. It provides:

“No person in the United States shall on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subject to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance…”
The Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights

Enforcement by OCR

- OCR’s enforcement generally depends on the philosophy of the political party in power or on public and/or political pressure.

- Because OCR’s enforcement is so bureaucratic and onerous, complainants or plaintiffs have been forced to seek remedies and solutions through the legal process.
Legal Cases

3 majors pertinent cases (there are many others)

- Franklin v. Gwinnett County Public Schools – in addition to injunctive relief and damages provided for reimbursement for fees and expenses, Franklin also required the school must be found to have intentionally violated Title IX.

- Jackson v. Birmingham Board – established retaliation under Title IX for coaches suing under Title IX

- Biediger v. Quinnipiac – rigorously analyzed “games schools play” to comply with Title IX – Numbers behind the EADA, new sports; double/triple counting athletes; % differential between men and women.
Enforcement

Penalty for non-compliance is withholding of federal funding. This has never happened in 39 years.

Possible results of a compliance review or complaint investigation:

- the institution is found in compliance with Title IX
- Voluntary resolution agreement OCR facilitates with the parties
- complainant agree enter into an ECR (Early Complaint Resolution) prior to the completion of the investigation
- the institution is found out of compliance and receives a LOF (Letter of Finding) and usually results in a subsequent CAP (Corrective Action Plan)
Title IX

- Title IX applies to most elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities. It also applies to programs and activities affiliated with schools that receive federal funds (such as internships or School to Work programs and to federally funded education programs run by other entities such as correctional facilities, health care entities, unions and businesses.

- Title IX protects students, faculty and staff.

- Title IX regulations require federally funded educational programs to take a variety of steps to prevent and address sex discrimination, including:

  ✓ designate at least one employee with major responsibility to serve as its Title IX Coordinator, institution is required to publish the name address and phone number

  ✓ adopt and publish grievance procedures that follow prompt and equitable resolution of complaints

  ✓ implement and disseminate a policy that prohibits sex based discrimination
Areas Covered Under Title IX

- Sex discrimination in admission to educational institutions
- Discrimination on the basis of pregnancy and marital status
- Sexual Harassment in educational institutions
- Student Services
- Career and Vocational Education
- Title IX and sports
  - Discrimination in Physical Education Programs
  - Discrimination in Athletic Programs
Misconceptions Regarding Title IX

- Applies only to athletics
- Applies only to girls and women
- Requires quotas
- Requires men’s sports to be dropped
Title IX Requires Equitable

1. Accommodation of Athletic Interests & Abilities
   (Participation Opportunities )

2. Athletic Scholarships

3. Benefits, treatment and services
   ( in 11 areas called the “laundry list” )
Participation Opportunities

Title IX generally requires institutions to offer male and female students equal opportunities to participate in intercollegiate sports.

There are 3 ways institutions can demonstrate compliance:

1. the percentage of male and female athletes is about the same as the percentage of male and female enrolled at the school, OR

2. the school has a history and continuing practice of expanding opportunities for female students, since they usually have been excluded from sports, OR

3. the schools can show that it is completely and effectively meeting the need of the female athletes = interests and abilities.
Who Counts as an OCR “Participant”

Everyone, who on the first day of competition:

• Receives institutionally-sponsored support normally provided to athletes competing at the institution; and

• Participates in organized practice sessions and other team meetings and activities on a regular basis during the sports season; and

• Is listed on the eligibility or squad list for each sport; or

• Who because of injury cannot meet the above but who continue to receive financial aid on the basis of athletic ability
Athletic Scholarships

Athletics financial aid spent (as opposed to budgeted) should be within 1% of the student-athlete participation percentages (not undergraduate enrollment).

If the student-athlete participation is 45% male and 55% female then the scholarship dollars spent should be within 1% of that.

How To Measure Title IX Compliance

• Talk to other coaches and student-athletes
• Be a bean counter – evaluate using numbers as well as anecdotal explanations and comparisons, can’t control what you can’t count or verify.
• Be a critical thinker – ask questions
• Become knowledgeable and familiar with:
How to Measure Title IX Compliance

• Athletic Department budgets
• NCAA Financial Data Reports
• EADA Reports (Equity in Athletic Disclosure Act)
• Athletic Department Policies and Procedures
• Tour all athletic facilities
• Review student-athlete exit interviews
• Create spreadsheets to compare benefits and services provided for all teams
What Title IX Does and Does Not Require

• Does not require equal dollars be spent on men and women, only male and female student-athletes must receive equitable benefits

• Does not require the same amount be spent on men’s and women’s sports. Does allow for discrepancies in costs along as they are based on legitimate and justifiable non-gender related

• Does not require identical programs for male and females

• No sport is excluded from Title IX

• Tiering of sport programs allows institutions to choose to provide greater resources for some teams as long as it provides those resources proportionally to females

• No matter in what forms money arrives (fundraising, donations, ticket revenue, etc) once expended or provided to teams it must be counted by the institution in evaluating Title IX compliance
